** ALL ABOUT AAC ****

The OCTC Clinic for Augmentative Communication (CAC) is pleased to offer a consultation service to help you learn more about augmentative and alternative communication (AAC).

"All About AAC" is open to speech-language pathologists and occupational therapists working with children who use or may need to use AAC, either for face-to-face communication (eg: picture boards or voice output devices for children who are unable to speak) or for written communication (eg: adapted computers for children who are physically unable to write). A CAC speech-language pathologist, occupational therapist and/or program assistant will be available for one-on-one consultation. We would be pleased to:

- share ideas about putting AAC into practice
- discuss possible referrals to CAC
- guide you in planning interventions for your clients using AAC
- demonstrate particular AAC equipment of interest
- consult regarding potential school equipment prescriptions

Please note that this is not an assessment service and the client should not attend with you, although parents, caregivers, educators and other service providers are welcome to accompany you.

"All About AAC" runs from September to June. Consultations can be scheduled at your convenience, for approximately one hour, at our site at 2211 Thurston Drive in Ottawa. Telephone consultation or videoconference can also be arranged.

To book an appointment for "All About AAC" please call 613-688-2126, ext.0

Your call will be directed to a CAC speech-language pathologist or occupational therapist who will discuss your needs and book an appointment with you. We are able to provide a limited number of appointments each month.

We look forward to seeing you!
